TROUSDALE COUNTY FEATURED IN VIDEO

(NASHVILLE) – Trousdale County High School students and staff were recently featured in a video made by Utrust promoting the importance of showing appreciation for teachers. Utrust is a statewide organization that helps local school boards with unemployment issues as well as employee recognition, development and appreciation.

The video was created to spotlight the Employee Appreciation Program, which was launched by Utrust to help school systems all over the state of Tennessee recognize and honor the contributions of their employees.

Several teachers from Trousdale County High School including J. Brim McCall, Shelley Cook, Mary Jo Preston and Director of Schools, Clint Satterfield were all interviewed for the video. They were asked about the importance of students showing appreciation for their teachers. “It’s a thankless job most of the time,” Shelley Cook states in the video. “But it doesn’t matter if it’s just that one kid that comes up to you and says thank you, then that makes the year; that make’s it all worth it,” Cook continued.

Several students from Trousdale County High School were also featured in the video, discussing the importance of teachers in each of their lives. The video can be found on the Utrust website, at www.tnuct.com.
